the combination of one probiotic only. It shows that these two probiotics were effective at attenuating the impact of tomato juice on growth, gut microbiome, and gut microbiota-associated metabolites of broiler chickens. This could be due to the potential inhibitory activity of LAB against pathogenic bacteria. Hence, the use of synbiotic formulas containing these two probiotics could be a promising new approach to improve the ability of broilers to grow and reduce the detrimental impact of tomato juice during the early stage of broiler life. However, further studies are necessary to evaluate the efficacy and safety of these probiotics in the poultry industry.
